Once again it was a difficult choice but the designs that we chose to be featured in the Christmas Trio are:

Billy Hardy, age 5 (back cover), Sam Johnson, age 7 (p17) Jake Johnson, age 6 (p 25), Toby Johnson, age 6 (p 8) Bob Sproull, age 7, (back cover), Joey Sproull, age 5 (back cover) Rosie-May Richards, age 8 (page 3), Issabella Bushell, age 8 (p2)

WELL DONE TO YOU ALL

From the editor:

So, have you noticed the difference in this month's Trio? The beast was getting a bit tired and temperamental and so has been replaced with another all singing, all dancing beast that also prints in colour. We hope you like it.

This Christmas issue includes some of Port Isaac school children's thoughts on Christmas and they are scattered throughout Trio. Class Two also sent in their recipe for a perfect Christmas:

"One massive, shiny, gold and green tree. A few drops of a roaring fire.

- 4 teaspoons of magical, twinkling glitter.
- 1 tablespoon of luxurious, fruity, delicious Christmas pudding.
- 1 warm roast dinner fit for a King.

A pinch of joy and fun to light up a house. 2 handfuls of big and small brightly coloured presents.

Mix in some glossy, sparkly, amazing decorations.

Blend in excitement and wonder. Stir in laughter and screaming as we run downstairs on Christmas Day."

What more can we say? A very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Peaceful New Year to everyone.

Fisherman's Friends update

On stage in Birmingham nother roller-coaster year came to an end with a tour that covered Cheltenham. Salisbury, Bristol, Birmingham, Plymouth and London's Union Chapel. Their summer Friday nights raised staggering amounts for charity, they appeared on the Main Stage at Glastonbury, two sell-out nights at the Minack, plus loads of other festivals and gigs and their book was released. February sees the start of another tour and the Minack is booked again for next year (have you got your tickets yet?) Plus the production of their film is due to start in 2012. The big question is, will George Clooney be in the village in the role of John Brown, and more to the point, will he be cleaning our windows?

Clearly St Kew appreciate their resident celebrity - Lefty - more than we do the rest of the boys, as he was chosen to turn on the St Kew Christmas lights!

Post Office update

an Rogerson MP has written again to Peggy Hills about the proposed Post Office service for the village. He says "Fingers crossed it will open in the New Year". He enclosed a copy of the response he had had from the Post Office's Regional Network Manager who said: "I appreciate the inconvenience that such a prolonged closure has caused to local residents ... I'm therefore delighted to report that the Church Rooms have now been granted the relevant safety certificate to allow us to begin our procedures to re-open the branch. We are ordering the necessary equipmentand will enter a period of consultation on our plans shortly. I expect this to lead to the reopening of the branch early in the New Year."

Given that similar assurances have been given before, we await the New Year with baited breath. In the meantime, thanks to Peggy for not letting this one go.

New Year's Eve Fireworks

Dear All

It's that time of year again and we're planning the usual New Year's Eve fireworks from the Old School. Last year we asked all the businesses that were opening to share the cost with us and we had a great response. A big thank you to everyone who contributed, not just to the businesses but the handful of individuals who gave money. Hopefully, everyone enjoyed it!

Once again, we're asking for contributions for this year's display. The names of everyone who does (unless they want to remain anonymous) will be displayed on the notice boards outside the Old School on the night. If you would like to contribute, please pop in to reception.

Happy Christmas from Jake, Bonnie, Rick and all the Old School team.

Christmas and New Year Rubbish

Rubbish will collected as usual on Friday December 23rd and Friday December 30th but our first new year collection will be on Thursday January 5th.

Recycling will be collected on December 28th and on January 11th.

Trio telephoned Cornwall Council to see if they would, as in previous years, be collecting real Christmas trees for disposal, free of charge. At the time of going to press they did know if they would be operating this system so you will need to call 0300 1234141 to check.

Trewetha Lane Car Park – The Facts

In 2010, St Endellion Parish Couincil employed professionally qualified architects and consulting engineers to apply to Cornwall Council for planning permission to build a 135-space visitor car park and outdoor market on a field it owns next to Port Isaac recreation ground. This field has been used as a temporary car park, which must now be replaced by a permanent one. There was only one objection to the planning application design, from a resident in Hillson's Close.

In the summer of 2010, Cornwall Councill Planning & Highways officials granted planning permission for a design with three levels and extensive tree and shrub planting, to screen parked vehicles from the surrounding area of outstanding natural beauty (AONB), and the widening of Trewetha Lane, the B3267. The design also meets the anti-flood requirement of the Environment Agency on porous surfaces and storm water drainage. Nobody, apart from the Parish Council, has approached Cornwall Council officials since then with alternative proposals for a cheaper car park scheme.

The Parish Council intends to build the car park this winter in accordance with the Planning Permission. It's Consultant Landscape Architect has applied for two amendments to reduce the project cost - replacement of the Cornish hedge along the main road frontage with a post and rail wood fence and hedge planting, and substitution of a footpath for the steps between the three car park levels. Otherwise the design remains the same.

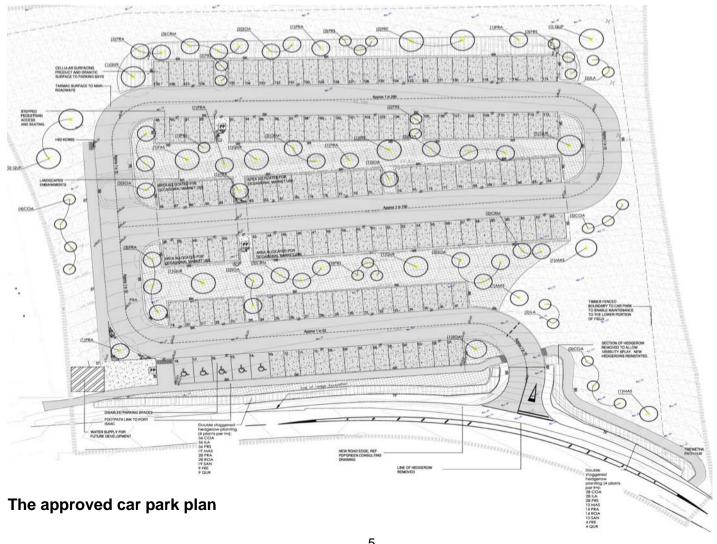

An independant firm of Chartered Quantity Surveyors has been retained by the Parish Council to negotiate the lowest possible price with Cornwall Council's works organisation, Cormac, to build it, and also to independently certify that the Parish Council has obtained 'best value'. These negotiations have been concluded and the Quantity Surveyor has recommended a provisional construction cost of £400,000. Cornwall Council's Treasurer's Department will independantly assess the finaincial viability of the project prior to authorising a Cornwall Council Guarantee of the Parish Council's loan repayments to the Public Works Loan Board. Sproulls Solicitors have been retained by the Parish Council to draft a loan guarantee agreement.

Cornwall Council Car Park Services will, at no charge to the Parish Council, collect the cash from the 'Pay & Display' machines and bank it in the Parish Council's account. It will restock the ticket machines. None of the car park proceeds will go to Cornwall Council. After VAT and operating expenses such as business rates are paid, all of the net income will be used to repay the Public Works Loan over the loan term of ten years, or a shorter period if the income allows, in accorance with the Cornwall Council Loan Guarantee Agreement. When the loan is repaid and Cornwall Council is no longer liable, the Parish Council will be free to spend the net income as the community wishes.

The Parish Council believes tha the provision of this car park is in the best interests of the community, the local tourism economy and local employment. The Cornwall Council loan guarantee ensures that no costs will fall on Council Tax precept payers.

The approved plans may be inspected by the public by prior arrangement at Cornwall Council's offce in Barn Lane, Bodmin or on Cornwall Council's internet website.

In the summer of 1981, David Castle the then Hon-Sec of Port Isaac Lifeboat Station, organised a trip to visit the Penlee Lifeboat Station. As a crew member at the time I went along and met the crew and their ladies who showed us kind hospitality and we went out on an exercise in the then Penlee Boat Solomon Browne.

Later that same year, I awoke on my birthday, December 20th, to the terrible news that the Solomon Browne and her crew were all lost during the night. I have since remembered the disaster every year on my birthday and in 1991 I realised that ten years had passed and decided to write a song about it. The words came but I could not seem to put them to music. I gave a copy to Steve Knightley of Show of Hands who used it as inspiration for a song he called "The Shout". He suggested to just keep my words as a poem.

December 19th this year marks the thirtieth year since this tragedy and I thought I would share it with Trio readers.

Ed Fletcher

Penlee

The cold sea covets one more life, The crewman leaves his tender wife, Drags on his boots and overcoat, Now he's running for the boat.

He fights his way down to the shore, The rockets calls have gathered more, With anxious nod he greets the cox`n, Joins his brothers on the Watson.

The whistle shrieks the diesels roar, The hammer clangs,- she's out the door, Pounding headlong down the slip, Her passage planned to save a ship.

The breakers pound the valiant vessel, To tunes of tortured straining metal, As if the hull's resigned to crack, But Lifeboat Men just don't turn back.

They find their quarry in dire plight,
Awash and plunging in the night,
They try to close to pass a line,
The last report - four off - we're doing fine ...

Then distant drumbeats swell until, A Sea-King hovers o`er the kill, Clattering stormbird in the night, Upon its cone of trembling light.

With inch precision, searching swells, For a clue, some soul to tell, But all that's found this night so evil, Is wreckage, and the stench of diesel.

The ship is lost the lifeboat too, Along with company and crew, Eight men gave that greatest gift, Laid down their lives that others might live.

So we recall with painful pride, Ten years on, the men who died, And others like them, hundreds more, Serving round our Nations shores.

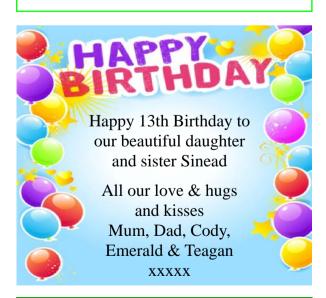

So when it's blowing, raining, night, Lets not forget our heroes plight, Remember them and what they do, Our ever gallant Lifeboat crews. Congratulations to Adrian & Lisa who got married on December 10th 2011

My Christmas Hamper by Demelza Moseley
Christmas should belong to Santa.
Christmas can sometimes be a time when families

Christmas begins when I put my decorations up. Christmas looks like a glowing Christmas tree.

Cooking with Martin

ell it's that time of the year again and so why not try a bit of home baking to impress family and friends also these are great recipes to get the kids involved.

Old-fashioned sweet mince pies

For the orange pastry

450g/1lb plain flour 1 tsp baking powder

240g/8oz unsalted butter, plus extra for greasing

1 tbsp caster sugar

140ml/5fl oz orange juice

Blend the flour, baking powder, butter and sugar in a food processor until the mixture resembles breadcrumbs. Add the orange zest and blend until well combined, then gradually add the orange juice, blending continuously, until the mixture comes together as a dough. (You may need to a little extra cold water.)

Turn out the dough onto a lightly floured work surface, knead lightly until smooth,

To Put Together.

Cut the chilled pastry in half. Roll out one half of the pastry onto a lightly floured work surface to a ½cm/¼in thickness. Using a 7cm/2½in pastry cutter, cut out 15-18 discs (as the mixture allows) and place one into each of the muffin tin wells.

For the mincemeat

1 lemon, boiled for 1 hour until soft, left to cool

100g/31/2oz raisins

100g/3½oz sultanas

½ Bramley apple or similar large cooking

100g/3½oz currants

½ tsp ground cinnamon

1/4 tsp freshly grated nutmeg

1 tsp mixed spice

1/4 tsp ground ginger

50ml/2fl oz brandy

50ml/2fl oz sherry

For the mincemeat.

Cut the boiled, cooled lemon in half and discard the pips. Blend the lemon, raisins, sultanas, chopped apple, mixed fruit and mixed peel in a food processor to a paste. Transfer the lemon mixture to a large mixing bowl and add the suet, muscavado sugar, currants, cinnamon, nutmeg, mixed spice, ground ginger, brandy and sherry. Mix together until well combined, then set aside overnight.

Spoon a tablespoon of the mincemeat mixture into each of the mince pie cases and brush the rim of each pastry case with a little beaten egg.

Roll out the remaining pastry onto a lightly floured work surface to a ½cm/½in thickness. Using a 5cm/2in pastry cutter, cut out 15-18 discs and place one on top of each mince pie. Press together the edges of the pastry to seal.

Brush the remaining beaten egg over the tops of the mince pies. Using a knife, make a small steam hole in the top of each pie.

Transfer the mince pies to the oven and bake for 20-25 minutes, or until pale goldenbrown.

Serve warm or cold with clotted cream, brandy butter or ice cream.

Salted caramel millionaire's shortbread

For the Shortbread

Preheat the oven to 180C/350F/Gas 4. Grease and line a 20cm/8in square cake tin. Rub the butter, sugar, vanilla seeds and flour together in a bowl to make rough dough. Press the dough into the cake tin and prick all over with a fork.

Home-made jaffa cakes

For the cakes

2 free-range eggs 50g/2oz caster sugar 50g/2oz plain flour, sieved

For the filling

1 x 135g/4¾oz packet orange jelly, chopped

1 tbsp orange marmalade 125ml/4½fl oz boiling water

200g/7oz good quality dark chocolate, minimum 70 per cent cocoa solids, broken into pieces

For the cakes.

Preheat the oven to 180C/350F/Gas 4. Bring a little water to the boil in a pan, then reduce the heat until the water is simmering. Suspend a heatproof bowl over the water (do not allow the base of the bowl to touch the water). Add the eggs and sugar to the bowl and beat continuously for 4-5 minutes, or until the mixture is pale, fluffy and well combined. Add the flour, beating continuously, until a thick, smooth batter forms.

Half-fill each well in a 12-hole muffin tin with the cake batter. Transfer the tin to the oven and bake the cakes for 8-10 minutes, or until pale golden-brown and cooked through (the cakes are cooked through when a skewer inserted into the centre of the cakes comes out clean.) Remove from the oven and set the cakes aside, still in their tray, until cool.

For the filling.

In a bowl, mix together the jelly, marmalade and boiling water until the jelly has dissolved and the mixture is smooth. Pour the filling mixture into a shallow-sided baking tray or large dish to form a 1cm/1/2in layer of jelly. Set aside until completely cooled, then chill in the fridge until set. When the jelly has set and the cakes have cooled, cut small discs from the layer of jelly, equal in diameter to the cakes. Sit one jelly disc on top of each cake. Bring a little water to the boil in a pan, then reduce the heat until the water is simmering. Suspend a heatproof bowl over the water (do not allow the base of the bowl to touch the water). Add the chocolate and stir until melted, smooth and glossy, then pour over the cakes. Set aside until the melted chocolate has cooled and set.

I would like to wish you all a happy Christmas and New Year, thank you for reading my recipes and I hope that some of you might have tried one or two of them.

Finally to those who were missing my cooking and could not afford Nathan Outlaw's prices, will be pleased to here that I am now working at St Kew Inn, and look forward to seeing you soon.

websites of the month

free communications over the internet

Christmas is fast approaching and so we all think more about being in touch with friends and family who may be in far flung parts of the globe. Over the past few years the internet has been steadily improving the available options for doing this. Being an old person, I can remember the delight I had with my family when we were able to make our first subscriber trunk dialling call to my aunt and uncle and family for Christmas who lived in New Zealand in 1959. Apparently the first call using that technology was made by the Queen who was on a visit to Brisbane in 1958. Our call was amazing for many reasons, but what I particularly remember is the fact you could hear their voices and their New Zealand accents, and the delay of about 10 seconds, between speaking and their answering. It also cost a lot. How times have changed. Now I can have a video call with my son and family in Australia for nothing, and he can watch me making the supper, while he sits in the evening sunshine drinking a glass of red wine.

The breakthrough for internet communication came with the establishment of an a range of agreed ways to handle speech based audio called Voice over Internet Protocol or VIOP for short and this hit the consumer market in 2004. Lots of phones came out which were specifically designed to be plugged into computers and used as ordinary phones. I don't know how successful these phones have been and they seem to have died out, having been replaced by smart mobile phones who use many of the same techniques. For the technically minded you can find out about history of and the way voice over internet protocol works here http://tinyurl.com/82q7new.

These systems are divided really into those that provide speech and those that do video as well, although as time goes by they are bringing all sorts of forms of communication together, so email, text, speech and video can be done from the same free system. The other general development is the integration with so called social media like Facebook, Twitter and the myriad of other ways people keep in touch. So, here is a brief tour through whats available at the moment. No doubt by the time this comes out there will be more things available as the territory changes so quickly.

Into this arena fairly early on was Microsoft Messenger, and anyone who has had anything to do with teenagers will probably have had the experience of them on Miscrosoft Network or MSN for short, for hours chatting and videoing with multiple friends using a strange teenage language of symbols and text messaging. This technology has evolved and is now much more sophisticated than it used to be and you can read about Wiindows Live Messenger http://explore.live.com/. This runs on smart phones as well as on computers.

Recently Microsoft have taken over the other major communication system, Skype, which was started in 2003 by two people from Denmark and Sweden and had 663 million registered users as of September 2011 see http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Skype. Skype allows you to communicate with other computers and smartphones with Skype installed, with no charges, over the internet using either speech or video, as well as sharing files and sending instant messages, a bit like email. It also allows you to phone landlines and mobile phones for a fee, but generally much more cheaply than ordinary phone calls. You can download the software from here http://www.skype.com/intl/en-qb/home.

Of course Google has one as well, called Google Talk http://www.google.com/talk/ which I find a bit complicated but it does the same as the other ones allowing you to do instant messages, file transfers and chatting. You do need a Google account to use it and it is all explained on the website.

One which has been gaining in popularity is FaceTime http://tinyurl.com/827kv48, which was launched by Apple on the iPhone in 2010. This is a very simple video phone system and provided you have it installed on your computer or phone you can call for free. As the iPhone and Mac computers have grown in popularity, the numbers who can call each other has also grown. As usual with Apple, they have thought carefully about design and it is very easy to use. All it does is video phone calls, but then that is probably what most people want from a video phone. The other systems sometimes get a bit too complicated, although you can do a lot more with them. So far there don't seem to be any plans to make it available on the PC, but with Skype already available, you don't really need it.

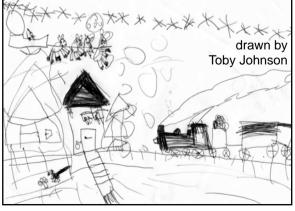

The final example, is one of a number of spinoffs, which are not the usual sort of system, but have something extra about them. Hamsphere http://www.hamsphere.com/ is a way of using this technology so you can get to be a Ham Radio operator without being one as it were. As it says on its website: "No extra hardware needed, just your PC, a microphone, speakers and you are ready to call CQ on the virtual Ham Radio bands. Once you have installed this Ham Radio Software you will be able to communicate with thousands of Amateur Radio operators and radio enthusiasts from over 200 countries around the world."

So all this before we start on the social networking sites like Facebook, so keeping in touch this Christmas couldn't be easier. Incidentally have a look at the whats on in Port Isaac Facebook site to get a feel for it http://www.facebook.com/portisaacwhatson?sk=wall&filter=2 and then if you like it, sign up and join in.

My Christmas Hamper

by Taran Moseley

Christmas should belong to everyone who has faith and believes

Christmas can sometimes be a hard and stressful time.
Christmas looks like a cheer and whiteness all around.
Christmas sounds like fun and games with the family.

he penultimate event in our 2011 calendar took us to Trevose Golf Club on a glorious day in early November. Trevose always offers a professional service and this was no exception as 17 PIGS enjoyed coffee, and the odd bacon roll for the hungry ones, before taking to one of the countries best golf courses. There was an Essex contingent as Dave 'The Hitman' Hurley brought two of his mates along from the 'smoke' to enjoy the clean North Cornwall air. I must apologise. I have just been informed that they don't have contingents in Essex. they want to be known as the Essex Massive ('MASS EEVE').

I think the standard of our golf must be getting better as there seems to be less and less to talk about - bad shots, throwing of clubs, crashing buggies etc. Oh my God, we seem to turning into an almost respectable golf society. This might require an urgent meeting to discuss the situation!! As is always the case with us PIGS, the banter was sometimes a bit harsh but always fair, and the company was great.

The Stableford winner was Steve Bunt but I think we were all winners on the day. Also, it was lovely for the Halfway House to be open and a nice bacon or sausage bap would have been nice, but The Adonis had got there first so cheese and pickle it had to be!! A couple of pints and a good dinner with friends ended a great day's golf.

And on a festive note, our Christmas PIGS event will be on December 19th. hopefully on the Holywell Course at St Enodoc followed by dinner at The Mote.

All the PIGS would like to wish their families, friends and all those people that haven't got a clue who the hell we are, A Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

The Lardman

There you go boys, that has saved you all a trip to Trago to buy those cheap Christmas cards!!

The Trelights Walker

undy Island standing proud on the distant horizon can only mean one thing - rain is imminent. And sure enough, when it comes you can guarantee I am walking to work.

The black foreboding clouds make for an intimidating atmosphere - like the feeling you used to get in school when the teacher was stood behind you and you were waiting for the clip round the ear after you had done something stupid aah, happy memories.

As the rain comes down in stair rods, puddles quickly form and the sound of rain hitting concrete and greenery perform their own little musical interlude with the odd interventions from my feet as they slap their way through the wet. The rain is relentless as it finds its way into my clothes, making me wetter and wetter with every step (Note to self: must buy a new coat!). Then comes Church Hill with its two racing rivers of water, one either side of the road, taking any small debris to another resting place nearer the village. It reminds me of childhood days playing on Lister Hill in Falmouth, our own form of 'Pooh Sticks' and you were posh if you had ones with the joke written on 'em, and making paper boats with paper sails and trying to sink your mate's boat by throwing stones at it! Aah, more happy memories.

Here is a question for walkers, readers and purveyors of all things strange - why do all boats and ships sail behind each other when they are on the horizon?

The Lardman

MERRY CHRISTMAS and, as Brucie and Tess would say, "KEEP WALKING!!"

A Christmas Prayer-Poem

by Eric Stokes, 1985

Let's count our blessings this December.

Folks carry burdens, just remember, If you've no shoes, your tears are all in vain.

Cry for those who'll never walk again.

It the past year brought pain or sorrow.

Pray God will smile upon you tomorrow.

To those alone, the greatest joy on

Would be, to share with friends, the Saviour's birth.

Wounds that opened through the year

Can be healed with words of Christmas cheer.

We thousand souls, our village is too small

To be divided by a Rose Hill wall.

To unkind words that, maybe, meant vou harm.

Unclench the fist to show an outstretched palm,

And, as the curtains draw on this year's end,

To everybody say, "God bless you, friend".

THE RNLI WINTER BALL

Suddenly, after months of planning, our RNLI Winter Ball was upon us. A giant of a marquee sprang up overnight at Trewetha Farm and an army of specialists including the RNLI committee and crew set to work to create a wonderland of sparkling lights cascading throughout the Big Top, incorporating a beautiful glittering Christmas Tree donated by Trelawney Garden Centre.

Sharps Brewery moved in and set up a very important feature, the Doom Bar counter and Wadebridge Wines provided a French touch with their Wine Bar, created by proprietor, Sue McWilliam. Chain Reaction provided a disco to beat all discos alongside the stage on which the two live groups, the Gumbo Flyers and Keiko-Rise performed for the 250 guests to dance the night away.

Guests arrived to be greeted with Champagne Cocktails created and served by James Yoki of No1 Rock Road and his team. This feature was provided by a generous donation from Doc Martin, Martin Clunes, including a gift of a Magnum of Bollinger champagne for the lucky guest holding the winning serial number on their entrance ticket.

The result of the night is a stunning sum in excess of £8000 raised for the RNLI through the Port Isaac committee which will be used to fund the introduction of our new crew lifejackets and other essential sea going operational requirements in the forthcoming year. Needless to say without the very hard work of our committee, the Bolton family, the companies and individuals who donated such valuable prizes and all of those who helped in so many ways giving their time and effort freely to the RNLI this splendid result would not have been achieved. Not forgetting, most important of all, the 250 guests who came in from the cold and gave so generously in support of this great RNLI evening. On behalf of our committee and crew a very big thank you to you all.

RESULT OF DRAW FOR STORM LAUNCH

ur popular artist and great RNLI supporter Barbara Hawkins, assisted by Father Christmas, pulled the winning draw ticket for her painting Storm Launch at the RNLI Christmas Market.

The painting was published as Port Isaac Station Christmas card this year. Some 1482 tickets have been sold since March and the lucky winner was Michelle Read from Rickmansworth with draw ticket number 02568 - so a unique historic record of a Port Isaac RNLI rescue of the past goes up-country. What a great Christmas present.

In addition, two special signed edition reproductions have raised over £800 at the Harvest Festival and Winter Ball.

Robert Manders reports:

As it's pouring down with rain at the moment, and has been very windy, perhaps we'll not describe a walk this month! However, there were a few things we didn't mention last month, as the walk and its description were a bit long... Walking on roads is tiring, and can be boring, but not if you look for the details, and think about the questions they raise. Like the badger holes in the base of the hedge, usually with a bit of ejected earth on the edge of the road beneath — there may be leaves if the residents have been changing their bedding. Being nocturnal, badgers make up their beds before going out in the evening to feed, so they can just crash-out and sleep through the day when they return. Birds of all kinds; around our village we are familiar with Sparrows, Tits and Finches, Blackbirds and Doves/Pigeons, and Herring Gulls, of course. Not far away, in Wadebridge, you only find Black-headed Gulls: why? In the road there are Wagtails, but not in our garden: why? Flowering plants throughout Spring and Summer, and the recently warm Autumn, but now... Then there's the human debris — how much longer will that GB sticker/empty drink bottle/plastic bag remain stuck on the road/in the hedge/on the tree? Should I retrieve them for binning/recycling or leave them to nature/ someone else to deal with? An ethical conflict between citizenship and laziness...

Thinking more about water as a result of reading "When the Rivers Run Dry" by Fred Pearce (Eden Project Books, paperback 2007), I've been reminded some of the conflicts that arise when trying to live in a climate-friendly way. Synthetic fibres, such as nylon and terylene, are made from materials isolated from petroleum, which is a non-renewable fossil resource. Obviously we should minimise our use of nonrenewable resources, materials isolated from them and, hence, synthetic fibres. So we should look for clothes made from natural fibres, like wool, cotton and linen. Wool is good for winter jumpers, and good for British industry, since we in the UK have an excellent climate for rearing sheep. Cotton is pleasant for summer things, and underwear, but grows best in countries with a hot, sunny climate, like Egypt, India and the southern USA. These are often relatively under-developed places, and it's good to support the inhabitants by buying their produce, especially if it is Fairly Traded. That means that the actual producers get a fair price for their goods, and often there is support for their community as well, help for schools and for developing businesses. Then there's the question of pesticides and fertilizers, which are made from petroleumbased materials and therefore best avoided. Cotton plants are assailed by many pests, but there are growers who use traditional methods to reduce damage, and maintain soil fertility. As a result it is possible to find Organic cotton, production of which has not involved the use of synthetic pesticides, or of artificial fertilizers. And it's often Fairlytraded as well.

Unfortunately cotton is a thirsty crop, and there's not much rain in hot, sunny places, so the fields have to be irrigated to produce any harvest. It takes about 20 bathtubsful of water to grow the 250 grams of cotton needed to make the average T-shirt. With little rain there's not much water in the rivers, so boreholes have to be sunk to tap underground aquifers (like the basin under London which used to feed Artesian wells), but these are drying up (as is the Artesian basin under London). Only slowly topped-up by the scarce rainfall, these underground water sources are essentially non-renewable resources, just as much as coal and petroleum, and we should try to minimise their use in the same way. Should we even think of buying cotton clothes at all, let alone whether they are Organic and Fairly-traded or not?? A real conflict of interests!

Incidentally, the amount of water needed to produce standard quantities of everyday foodstuffs is quite surprising. To quote from Fred Pearce's book "It takes between 2,000 and 5,000 litres of water to grow one kilo[gram] of rice" and "1,000 litres to grow a kilo[2.2 lb] of wheat, and 500 litres for a kilo of potatoes". When you start to think of meat and dairy products the numbers increase markedly: "It takes 24,000 litres [of water] to grow the feed for enough cow to make a kilo of beef; and between 2,000 and 4,000 litres for that cow to fill its udders with a litre of milk. Cheese? That takes about 5.000 litres for a kilo of Cheddar or Brie or Camembert." Sugar rates some 3,000 litres per kilo, and coffee 20,000 litres/ kilo, and to produce even one pint of beer uses 250 litres of water (though I believe Sharp's Brewery at Pityme are proud of using rather less). Economists have introduced the term "virtual water" for this water used in production of foodstuffs and other goods, and the concept of the export of this "virtual water" along with the goods themselves from the producing countries, usually lacking in water resources anyway. Now there's a train of thought to follow, another time, perhaps.

A final topic, more cheerful (at least, for some): we've become used to other people taking the initiative over things like installing solar PV panels, Wadebridge and WREN for instance, but have you seen what's been going on in Hilson Close in late November? West Country Housing Association (presumably) have covered every Southfacing roof with panels — I haven't counted, so I don't know how many kilowatts in total, but perhaps we should start talking about Hillson Close Power Station! They should all be connected up and commissiuoned before 12th December, when the HM Government subsidy decreases...the other bit of good news was (mid-October) that HMG was to increase its support for tidal and wave power, which is of specific interest to us here in Cornwall.

Wishing you a comfortable but (as near as possible) carbon-neutral Christmas, and a good and sustainable New Year.

Robert Manders

"we are so pleased we made the decision to move to this beautiful village"

Dear Trio

We would really like to thank everyone who has been so welcoming to us since we moved to the village in April. From the moment that we arrived people have been so friendly and gracious and everyone we have come into contact with since has whole-heartedly welcomed us into their community. We are both quite overwhelmed with how genuinely interested people are with the baby and how incredibly generous and thoughtful everyone has been.

We are so pleased that we made the decision to move to this beautiful village and we couldn't be more happy and excited about starting our little family here. We can't wait for our first winter as a three in the cottage and look forward to celebrating the first of many Christmasses with you all.

My Christmas Tree by Gabriel Stead

My Christmas tree sparkles like a diamond. My Christmas tree smells like leaves have fallen down. My Christmas tree looks like a green fairy. My Christmas tree feels like a monster. My Christmas tree wants to be human. My Christmas tree hopes that you have a lovely Christmas,

Winter Ball congrats

Dear Trio

I was able to pop up the see the set up for the Ball prior to all arriving in their finery. I was there to take some 'happy snappies' for our Chairman of all the hard workers and the layout etc. It was blatently clear just how much thought, preparation and hard work had gone into the planning, setting up and execution of what everyone has told me, was a brilliant evening.

Sadly, due to various reasons, I could not be there on the night, but I do feel a huge thank you should go to Chris and Liz, James, Damien and Amy Bolton. No detail was left untouched. The entire setup, was magnificent. I would also like to say a huge well done to Bob Bulgin (our Chairman) who worked so hard to pull it all together, along with the Ball Committee. Well done and thank you to all the brilliant helpers.

Annie Price

PS I thought the loo's looked fantastic and smelt gorgeous, even if they did upset the electrics somewhat when someone flushed and washed their hands with hot water!

A Thought for Christmas by Eric Stokes

There is a warmth within these bare

That seem to repel all winter's chills Not the heat of the brazier's brilliant flare

Or the sun with its harsh, abrasive glare.

It's a warmth that transcends all glowing coals

It's fount is in Port Isaac folks' souls Unquenchable flames on a cold winter's day

Pierced the heart of a stranger who came to stay.

A stranger who forsook the streets of locked doors

Found men with free hearts by the ocean's grey shores

Hearts that were open, kindness without end

Hands that reached out, and said "Welcome friend".

Mine was the hand that you shook long ago

A lifetime of friends in a few years or so.

May the good Lord repay you, for the kindness you've shown God bless you, for calling me one of your own.

Chorale has plenty to sing about!

2011 has been a good year for the Port Isaac Chorale. It began with their musical director being presented with the MBE 'For services to music and to the community of Port Isaac' and no-one would dispute there couldn't have been a more worthy recipient. For over 40 years, Janet has promoted music within the village and beyond, setting up a range of choirs and musical groups and organising many musical events. The Port Isaac Chorale continues to go from strength to strength under her directorship and once again were awarded the cup for best adult choir at the Wadebridge Music Festival.

The Chorale will be out and about over the Christmas period if you'd like to come and listen. This year, instead of the usual Carols in the Pottery evening, the choir will be singing at St Kew Church carol service on Sunday 18th Decembe, followed by an open carol session at the Red Lion Inn, St Kew Highway where everyone is welcome to join in . Friday the 23rd will see the Chorale singing carols at the Port Gaverne Hotel. This is always a popular evening so come along and get into the Christmas spirit.

Looking forward to 2012, now's the time to make plans which aren't about the Olympics but about your own health and wellbeing. The health benefits of singing have long been recognised so read on and find out how you can approach 2012 with a whole new hobby! The Port Isaac Chorale are a group of men and women of all ages who enjoy singing a very wide range of music together and we'd like a few new members to join us in January. We are looking for both male and female (although males are particularly welcome). You will have to have a short, private audition with Janet Townsend MBE and, if successful, you will expected to attend Tuesday evening rehearsals regularly. These only take place during school term time and there are also occasional concerts so it's not a huge commitment. If you're interested, phone Morwenna Vernon on 01208 880714 for more information. Make 2012 the year you join the Chorale and enjoy singing with a new group of friends.

And is it true, and is it true This most tremendous tale of all.

Seen in a stained-glass window's hue,

A Baby in an ox's stall?
The Maker of the stars and sea
Become a Child on earth for me?

And is it true? For if it is, No loving fingers tying strings Around those tissued fripperies, The sweet and silly Christmas things,

Bath salts and inexpensive scent And hideous tie so kindly meant,

No love that in a family dwells, No carolling in frosty air, Nor all the steeple-shaking bells Can with this single Truth compare -

That God was man in Palestine And lives today in Bread and Wine.

We held our end of season dinner on December 4th where we were proud to present a cheque to The Cornwall Leukaemia Trust, our chosen charity for 2011. Thank you to everyone who has supported our events during the year, it is wonderful to have so many friends of the club

Once again we will be having our annual Gig Push at the end of the month, look out for the posters soon.

We are all looking forward to the 2012 season where we hope to increase our membership and compete in even more events

We wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Record Poppy Appeal collection

I would like to thank you all for giving so generously to this years Poppy Appeal - the 90th Anniversary of the beginning of the Royal British Legion. Your generosity of monies given from individuals, organisations, wreaths, street-to-street collections, shops and hotels raised the outstanding amount of £3152.38. A record high. For a small community, this amount is incredible and I thank you all.

As I am sure you are aware, the Royal British Legion relies on the kindness of the public to finance .their very high costs every year, especially during this time. So many families have suffered in so many ways and the RBL, along with Help for Heroes, SAFA and so many other brilliant organisations, are always there to help in whatever way they can. They cover every aspect of those 'in need' and will always endeavour to never let anyone down.

A huge thank you goes to so many people who worked so hard to make this event so memorable. To the team in St Peter's who polished all the brass and silver, for Noreen Honey for her beautiful autumn flower arrangement by the alter and to Janet Chadband for doing such beautiful vases full of alter poppies. The Church looked so welcoming and warm. Huge thanks must go to Marion and her son Francis Larkin for all their hard work and greeting all the congration so kindly.

We were so lucky to have Canon Peter Larkin to conduct the service so beautifully, especially his sermon which everyone present appreciated enormously, and a very grateful thank you to Sandy Hancock who played the organ. As always we rely on David Phelps and Ted Childs to play their very important part in the service, and of course Peter Bowers who is such a dignified Standard Bearer. This year we collected over £155 just at the service. Thank you for your generosity and for attending,

I do wish you all a very Happy Christmas and a trouble-free 2012.

Located on the coast road our guest lounge has spectacular sea views of the Solent and the Isle of Wight.

There's a lovely picture (in the old days a Church or village scene with snow, glitter and carol singers - nowadays might be a shopping centre!) and starting on December 1st you open a window every day. Each day some exciting new thing is revealed: an angel, a bell, a snowman, or whatever it is. Then on Christmas Eve the children excitedly open the last window. This is normally twice the size of all the others and behind it is the crib scene -

Jesus lying in the manger, with Mary and Joseph, shepherds, cows - the lot!

Each day you open a window. And I think we still have to do this. This year I've even ordered some Advent calendars from America which are reproductions of ones we had when I was a child in Germany just after the War. I can't wait to see them when they come!

But what I mean is not just opening the windows and doors on the calendar. What we really have to open are the windows and doors of our lives: to other people, to new life, to God, to a new year full of new possibilities and meaning.

I hope Advent and Christmas is a time of great wonder and joy for you! Open the door of your heart to new life and hope!

from John May

A new service for everyone at St Peter's

Until now, every Sunday at St Peter's there has been a Holy Communion service at 9.45am. But with nine churches in our group now, I have challenged each church to have one service each month which could (at least sometimes) be led by someone who is not a priest. I think St Peter's got guite excited about this! We loved `Church & Cake' - our children's service. But very sadly the families drifted a bit. Was it summertime? I forget. And what we are going to do now is a special service for all ages on the third Sunday of every month, starting on January 15th.

We wondered what to call it. Was it a kind of resounding Songs of Praise? Was it a `Family Service'? Would it be called `All age worship'? In the end, we just said, Look! This is going to be Informal Worship. It might be like a Songs of Praise, it will be for young and old, it won't include Holy Communion, we would hope to introduce modern music bit by bit, we might say one Sunday "No sermon! We're going to have coffee early and have a discussion" = "Cafe Church", or we might light candles and reflect a bit with some beautiful music being played.

I can tell you that it will be the people who will come who will make it what it will be! Please come! By coming you will be able to make Port Isaac a place where the spiritual life is truly alive and God is praised. January 15th - 9.45am. Come and help make it what it will be!

John

Santa Claws went to Truro!

✓ laude, a giant six foot lobster mascot greeted customers at Waterstones Bookshop when local author Sarah Boothroyd and illustrator Caroline Cleave promoted their new children's book 'Claude gets his Claws'.

Andrew Forster, Manager of Waterstones said, 'We like to promote local authors and this book is no exception with its beautiful illustrations of our Cornish lobster. 50% of the proceeds feed back into the marine conservation of this enigmatic species around Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly and we are delighted to support the charitable work of the National Lobster Hatchery.'

The story follows Claude and his 4,000 brothers and sisters, from egg on the underside of their mum's tale to graduating with proper claws. To being caught in a lobster pot and taken to the lobster hatchery where they are nurtured through their most vulnerable stage of their life cycle and finally being released back into the wild to start their new life.

The idea of the book was to generate additional income for the charitable work of the National Lobster Hatchery in Padstow; a marine conservation, education and research programme that promotes the importance of sustainable fisheries, boosts the local population of the European Lobster through a stock enhancement programme and in turn, supports local communities that still heavily rely upon fishing. Said Dominic Boothroyd, General Manager of the National Lobster Hatchery, 'We are delighted that the book has been so successful since hitting the shelves only six months ago. This book is a really exciting way for children to find out about the lifecycle of this amazing creature that is found on our doorstep'.

Being blind doesn't mean dying by inches in an armchair!

have been registered blind for 11 years but have only been totally blind for 11 months. In all of that time I've learned that I can still do many of the things I previously did. With determination, imagination, a little help from my friends and a lot of help from my guide dog(s), being blind didn't have to mean dying by inchhes in an armchair.

Recently I took part in a sculpture course for the visually impaired sponsored by Cornwall Blind Association at which we were taught by Richard Austin, whose skill, empathy and encouragement enabled us to see through our fingers and achieve more than we hoped. We all did different things, some made several things over the nine lessons. One of us brought in a live snail from her garden as the model for the day. It was neither interested nor cooperative and kept moving with surprising speed out of her very limited range of residual vision.

Kathie with her sculpture of Omar's

My aim was to sculpt the head of Omar, my first very beautiful and languid guide dog known to many of you, now thoroughly enjoying his retirement with a friend of mine in Callington. It was finished in the last hour of the final lesson. It feels like Omar to me. Does it look like Omar to you?

If funds can be raised for another course next year.. or at sometime in the future... perhaps I'll have a go at Urma's lovely head. Urma is my new very young, very bouncy. very beautiful, very efficient guide dog whom few of you have yet met. You will.

Best wishes to one and all from Kathie and Urma of course.

My Christmas Hamper by Michael Trewin

Christmas should belong to Santa. Christmas begins exciting. Christmas looks like snow and fun. Christmas sounds like screaming children. Christmas smells like trees. Christmas wishes are like the wind. Christmas kisses are like poison. Christmas tears are like raindrops. Christmas smiles are like snow. Christmas dinner is like a King's feast.
