

33 Temperance Rally on Port Isaac beach around the time of the First World War

Drink was the big local issue around the turn of the 20th century, with sufficient money being raised to build a Temperance Hall in 1895 for the local community. This became Port Isaac Village Hall in 1958, but is still referred to as the Temperance Hall by many locals.

Photo courtesy 'A Glimpse of the Past'

