I have always been inspired by the sea; what's in and under the sea, the seashore, the coast line. So Port Isaac, with it's fantastic proximity to the wild Atlantic Ocean and rugged scenery, seems to me an inspiring and visually wonderful place to live. Of course the other advantages are endless - a close knit and caring community, a great bunch of like minded artistic friends, lots of interesting things going on all the time to be involved in if you want to and lots more. I consider living here a great privilege and pleasure and am inspired every day by the scenery we wake up to. How lucky we are.

Bob my husband and I have dived around the world for 40 years and have had many adventures. I have found watching all sorts of species under the sea fascinating, especially their faces, so consequentially when I started painting I wanted to portray those faces and eyes .
