

The Mote

In the early 1800s this an inn called 'The Bristol Packet'. It later became 'The Commercial'.

In the 1930s and 40s it was a bakery and then became a restaurant. Until recently it was called 'The Wheelhouse' but it's current owners and changed it's name back to the original when it was a 'Moot House' - elders and freemen would meet here to discuss village matters (much as happens today!!).

Quite a few of the women in the village today first came to Port Isaac to work for the summer, many to 'The Wheelhouse' and they have many memories of the owner, 'Wheelhouse Willy'. The girls met and married local boys and the rest, as they say, is history.
