

The Pump

There is an old village pump at the front of Pump Cottage. It was still used in the 1950s. Even after the mains water supply was installed, people still preferred the clear pump water because the mains water tended to be brown. The pump was finally sealed off in the early 1970s.

In the 1930s: "This was the home of Mr & Mrs Bert Keat. His wife was called Lillian. They had one son, young handsome Bert who was killed in the war, plus daughters Hazel, Phyllis, Joan, Beryl and Veronica."
