

The Fisherman's Friends sign a million pound record deal with Universal Music

March 18th 2010 ... News reports all over the country told of a new boy band with a combined age of 500 and something

Jon (Cleave) was making tea in his kitchen at 5.45am when he heard the Fisherman's Friends mentioned on the BBC World Service, and thought 'Here hang on, that's we boys!'

The boys met up in the early morning darkness (6am to be exact) on the Platt to be filmed for three live bits on the BBC Breakfast show ... the whole thing just snowballed and there was Radio This and Radio That, ITV and ITN and Sky news teams all wending their way down to the Platt and the filming finally finished about 12 hours later ...

"If nothing else was to happen, the journey has been wonderful".
Peter Rowe

Jon & Jeremy doing a radio interview ...
"Can we get away with saying that on the radio?"

Asked by Trio how they felt about their success ... To a man (apart from Peter Rowe) they agreed that they wouldn't be giving up the day job (just yet!) ...

So, will fame change them?

Jeremy: "My wife hopes so", Lefty has high hopes that his rise to fame "might make me taller". Pete laughed and said, "It'll probably kill me!" Jon, speaking on behalf of them all: "We've all got good lives and great families, we love where we live and what we do, and the whole thing about being Cornish".

The new album, Port Isaac's Fisherman's Friends, quickly reached number one on the Amazon pre order chart ...
