Port Isaac's Fisherman's Friends, Sailing at Eight Bells
the story of our "ten Cornish seadogs who took the world by storm"

... interwoven into the tales of their lives so far is a record of what living in Port Isaac is all about and some of the changes that have taken place in our village over the years ...

... friend and fan, DJ Mark Radcliffe has written the foreward to the book. A regular visitor to and lover of "this nigh-on perfect corner of Cornwall" long before he had heard of the boys, Mark describes a Friday night on the Platt – "these sturdy, stout-hearted stevedores clear their throats ... then something wondrous happens. Like a well-lubricated Leviathan emerging from the drunken deep, a tsunami of song sweeps over the seafront" ...
... "I like them enormously as guys, although I have to say that spending any time with them incurs a very expensive round!" ...

"modern folklore" "they are something very special"

"the sound they make is as unique and special as the place they have in our hearts"

"... clearly St Kew appreciate their resident celebrity - Lefty - more than Port Isaac does the rest of the boys, as he was chosen to turn on the St Kew Christmas lights!"
